Humid grasslands formed by tall grasses and rushes, often associated with coastal dunes, found throughout the Mediterranean basin and around the Black Sea. The habitat also occurs on the Canary Islands (Spain).

Some 99% of the habitat area is in the Mediterranean region where the habitat has been assessed as 'unknown' as Spain, which has the majority of the area, reported all parameters as 'unknown'. Excluding Spain from the regional assessment would lead to 'unfavourable-bad' due to 'area' and 'future prospects' in France although both Italy and Portugal report this habitat as 'favourable'.

Also 'unknown' for the Alpine and Continental regions, due to Spain reporting all parameters as 'unknown' (Alpine) and Italy two parameters as 'unknown' (both regions). Assessed as 'unfavourable-bad' for the Atlantic region due to France reporting all parameters except 'range' as 'unfavourable-bad'. Also 'unfavourable-bad' for Macaronesia due to bad 'structure and functions'.

 Better information required, particularly from Italy and Spain.
