Assessments of conservation status at the European level (all biogeographical regions - EU25)

Acidic screes of central Europe north of the Alps and also from France.

This habitat has been assessed as 'favourable' for the Continental, Mediterranean and Pannonic regions although there is variation between countries with, for example, Poland and the Czech Republic (both Continental region) reporting 'unfavourable-bad'. The habitat is only present in France in the Atlantic region where the habitat has been assessed as 'unfavourable-inadequate' due to poor 'future prospects' while the assessment for the Alpine region is 'unknown' as France reported two parameters and Austria all parameters as 'unknown'.

A variety of threats and pressures have been reported but many countries mention mineral extraction and natural evolution towards other plant communities. Better information required.
