

Good practices for CCA and DRR integration depend on phase management cycle

Emphasis more on slow-onset hazards
(droughts, floods, heat waves, sea level rise)

Emphasis more on rapid onset hazards
(floods, storms, fires, landslides)

Good practices across EEA member countries

Examples of and ideas for synergetic DRR and CCA measures and practices
1st afternoon session

- DRR: institutionalized in laws, governmental bodies; mostly with a long history
- CCA: more recently organized at different levels and across sectors in other laws and institutions
- Widespread agreement: CCA to be more integrated into DRR institutions and governance
- Session focus: How can countries achieve this in practice?,
- Which practices already exist or can be imagined, e.g.,
 - adaptation of organizations, laws, procedures,
 - coordination between departments and non-governmental stakeholders, between national and local level, and
 - other governance mechanisms

Session 4A

- What are good examples of effective integration of CCA in DRR governance arrangements at different levels?
- How can actions at European level help to foster integration of CCA into DRR governance?
- Which concrete examples are recommended for inclusion in the EEA report and which issues should be prioritized?

2nd afternoon session

- Measures to improve DRR can also benefit CCA and vice versa.
- Session focus: Which elements in planning and design of measures would need to be altered when CCA is to be integrated into DRR?
- Which practices already exist or can be imagined, e.g.,
 - Grey solutions, e.g., Building Back Better
 - Green solutions, e.g., nature-based solutions
 - Soft measures, e.g. insurance and risk transfer, capacity building and awareness raising

NB Emergency plans and early warning systems are DRR rather than CCA practices

Session 4B

- What are good examples of effective integration of CCA in DRR for concrete measures (prevention, preparedness, recovery (BBB))?
- How can actions at European level help to foster integration of CCA into DRR measures?
- Which concrete examples are recommended for inclusion in the EEA report and which issues should be prioritized?
